

Information on PIP Breast Implants

11th January 2012

In the light of the controversy surrounding the Poly Implant Prothese (PIP) breast implants, we would like to state that Burton Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust has never implanted Poly Implant Prothese (PIP) breast implants either for cosmetic or reconstructive purposes.

The Trust's current understanding of the Government's position is that women concerned that they may have had PIP implants inserted should contact the clinic who arranged their implants in the first instance for confirmation that PIP implants were used, and for advice on aftercare. If that clinic has closed down, patients should contact their GP for an examination and, if required, referral to the Burton Breast Clinic.
